

THE HERITAGE ADD-ON · SIX NIGHTS

The ground where the walking safari began, in six nights.

For clients pairing Zambia with Victoria Falls, Botswana or the Lower Zambezi: the gateway, Phil Berry's walking camp, and Lion Camp, the camp the 1961 record names.

NIGHT 1

Mfuwe Lodge

The gateway, 40 minutes from Mfuwe Airport. Elephants walk through the lobby in season.

NIGHTS 2-3

Kuyenda

Founded by Phil Berry, who learned to walk the bush from Norman Carr. Five thatched rondavels; walking at the center of the day.

NIGHTS 4-6

Lion Camp

Ten suites above a permanent lagoon in the remote north, on the ground Carr walked from in 1961.

DAY BY DAY

DAY 1	Fly Lusaka–Mfuwe (Proflight, twice daily). Afternoon game drive and sundowners from Mfuwe Lodge.
DAY 2	Transfer south to Kuyenda, about 75 minutes, game viewing on the way. First walk in the afternoon.
DAY 3	Morning walk with a licensed guide and an armed scout; afternoon drive into the night with a spotlight.
DAY 4	A full game drive north to Lion Camp, about three hours through the length of the park. Lunch on the Lion Plain.
DAYS 5–6	Walk or drive each morning and afternoon, the choice is your client's. Night drives, sundowners, bush meals.
DAY 7	Road transfer to Mfuwe Airport for the flight to Lusaka and onward connections the same day.

COMPLETE THE STORY

The full Heritage Journey ends with five nights at Chibembe Wildlife Reserve, across the river from Lion Camp, on the east-bank ground the 1955 record names. It runs on set dates each season.

WHY IT SELLS

Six nights adds a second country's worth of story to a southern Africa itinerary: the birthplace of the walking safari, two camps from the Collection's three names, and a drive the length of South Luangwa instead of a flight over it.

Rates and booking. Published rates are per person per night and exclude park fees and government and conservation levies of about US$95 to US$120 per person per night; every quote includes them. Trade partners work on net rates; specials typically apply to stays of six nights or more. The Bushcamp Company: Nicky Whittenmore, Head of Reservations, info@bushcampcompany.com.
